Wall Street Reservations to Begin October 30

Trans-Bridge Lines will begin its next phase of transitioning all schedules to reservations by switching over all Wall Street routes beginning Monday, October 30.

The reservation experience will provide passengers with a confirmed seat on the bus they have booked. Please note a reservation will not guarantee a particular seat on the bus however.

Reservations will give riders the peace of mind that they are confirmed for the bus they intend to utilize without the need to arrive to your stop extra early to secure a place in line. Sales will stop when a run reaches its capacity. At that point, online and point-of-sale purchases will be closed for that run.

Any Cash Fare passengers or those without a properly scheduled ticket for the run, will be considered a standby passenger. Any booked passenger who does not show up for their run within five minutes of departure, may lose their confirmed ticket to a standby passenger.

In addition, terms of ticket use will change. All One-Way or Round-Trip ticket will be valid only for the day and time purchased. If a passenger will not use the scheduled ticket, it must be rescheduled before the booked day or time, or it will become null and void, as it represents the loss of a sold seat for Trans-Bridge Lines. There will be no refunds or rescheduling after that time.

All Commuter Passes will remain valid for 30 calendar days, with three extra calendar days on a 30-trip Pass and four extra days on a 40-trip Pass. Commuters will also have a grace period of 16 hours after their missed scheduled run to reschedule it. After that period of time, their unused boarding pass will become null and void and they will need to schedule a new ticket on their Pass.

Rescheduling tickets can be done by signing into your account and following the prompts for rescheduling. Step-by-step instructions are also provided via transbridgelines.com under Online Ticketing FAQs.

We would like everyone to understand that we will be flexible with our passengers during this transition. Our staff realizes this is a change and we are committed to working with our passengers as they become acclimated to this new way of traveling with us.

“We began offering online ticketing in June 2022, and reservations first began this past April on our Doylestown/Flemington Schedule,” says Jim JeBran, Executive Vice President/Treasurer of Trans-Bridge Lines. “That conversion went very well and we are confident that our remaining schedules will transition smoothly as well. ”

Please send any questions or comments regarding Wall Street Schedules to webmaster@transbridgelines.com.

Commuter Fares

As our passengers know, fluctuating diesel fuel prices have presented a challenge, however, we remain committed to offering our customers the best fare possible.

Our staff continues to monitor these highs and lows, and as a result of a small downturn in fuel pricing, we will have a slight decrease in our Commuter Fares for the month of November.
