Would you please explain your bicycle and scooter policy?

Trans-Bridge Lines allows passengers to travel with bicycles and scooters by storing them in the bus's lower baggage compartment. This makes it easier for riders who combine cycling or scooting with bus travel for commuting or recreation.

What's Allowed: Standard bicycles (including folded or bagged bikes), Personal scooters. Items must be stored in the luggage compartment. Passengers are not permitted to open or close baggage compartment doors.

Hoverboards and self-balancing devices are not permitted.

Bikes and scooters count toward your baggage allowance. Standard allowance: 2 suitcases (up to 50 lbs. each). All items must be clearly labeled with the passenger's name. Space is subject to availability on each bus.

Price Structure: Free if your bike or scooter fits within your standard baggage allowance. $20 fee if it causes you to exceed your allowed baggage limit. Wheelchairs and ADA mobility devices are always transported free of charge.

Trans-Bridge Lines is not responsible for damage during transport. Folding or bagging your bike/scooter is recommended for protection and easier handling.

To ensure you receive your ticket confirmation emails without interruption, we recommend adding our email address (no-reply@transbridgelines.com) to your address book or safe sender list. This helps your email provider recognize our messages as legitimate and reduces the chance of them being filtered into your Junk or Spam folder.

Understanding NYC's Bus Idling Regulations

At Trans-Bridge, our commitment to providing safe, comfortable, and reliable travel is at the core of all we do.

We are also firmly dedicated to transparency and the sharing of information, therefore, we wish to make our passengers aware of New York City's bus idling regulations and a lawsuit by the American Bus Association against the City of New York regarding it.

We recognize that some passengers have experienced discomfort when boarding buses that are not yet fully cooled or heated. We understand how this can affect your experience, and we want to provide clear insight into why this occurs and what constraints we must operate within.

New York City enforces strict anti-idling laws aimed at reducing emissions and improving air quality. These regulations limit the amount of time a bus engine can run while parked. For motorcoach operators like us, this means:

- Bus engines cannot run more than three minutes on streets or in lots.
- Bus engines cannot run at all within the Port Authority even when boarding or unloading passengers. (This ruling conflicts with posted signage at the PABT, which states up to three minutes is allowed.)
- Compliance is mandatory and closely monitored.

Even when Trans-Bridge Lines buses have idled at the Port for under three minutes, we have received tickets. We have also received tickets when our buses are permitted to idle due to temperatures under 40 degrees. We must then manage the summons by going to court to prove our case; a time-consuming and costly process.

According to the American Bus Association, the motorcoach industry strongly supports environmental stewardship and recognizes the importance of reducing unnecessary emissions. However, they have also noted that rigid idling restrictions can present operational challenges — particularly in high-density transit hubs where passenger comfort and safety must be balanced with regulatory compliance.

Because the air conditioning and heating system on buses require the engine to be running, we are often unable to begin cooling or warming the bus until just prior to departure. This can result in a brief period where the on board temperature may not yet be at an optimal level when passengers first board.

We support efforts to reduce emissions and promote clean air. At the same time, we advocate for practical approaches that consider the realities of passenger transportation. As highlighted by the American Bus Association, the motorcoach industry is one of the most environmentally efficient forms of travel, moving passengers with a smaller environmental footprint per person compared to single-occupancy vehicles, rail, and air travel.

Since 2007, the engines of motorcoach buses have clean diesel engines, which utilizes advanced diesel technology and sophisticated emission control systems to minimize environmental impact. Improvements were also made in 2010, 2012, and in the newest 2027 engines, as advances are continuously made.

We continue to monitor developments in regulations and industry guidance, and we actively participate in conversations that seek to balance sustainability with passenger comfort.

Pickups and Drop-Offs

Newark Airport

Trans-Bridge Lines provides Newark Airport service to Terminals A, B, and C on the Lower Level HOV Roadway.

For pickups at Newark Airport, passengers are encouraged to arrive at the designated pickup location as early as possible, ideally at least 15 minutes prior to the scheduled departure time, to allow ample time for navigating the terminal and locating the bus stop.

Passengers boarding at Terminal A should proceed to Bus Zone 16 on the Lower Level HOV Roadway and follow the electronic signs directing travelers to Trans-Bridge Lines.

At Terminals B and C, passengers should look for the metal Trans-Bridge Lines signs marking our pickup location on the Lower Level HOV Roadway.

Please be alert for the bus and make your way to the bus immediately upon its arrival. It is best to wait near the curb at the pickup location in order to be in full view of the driver. We also recommend utilizing our Bus Tracker App which allows passengers to view the location of the bus in real-time with updated estimated times of arrival.

For airport drop-offs, please inform the motorcoach driver which terminal — A, B, or C — you require upon boarding. Drivers will only stop at terminals where passengers are scheduled to disembark.

Special note to passengers who purchase the Wind Creek Bethlehem Casino Same-Day Special Fare from New York to Bethlehem:

If you miss your bus and opt to drive to the casino with your private vehicle, the Wind Creek staff will not honor the $45 Free Slot Play Bonus. You must arrive by Trans-Bridge Lines motorcoach to be eligible for the promotion.

Thank you for your understanding of their policies.
